

Michelle Belanger - Blood of angels (cd Monolith Graphics)

Posted on 10 Apr, 2007

Michelle Belanger is first of all a writer who has already published several books about vampire themes. Next she's an artistically trained singer with a soprano voice who already contributed to releases and songs of bands like URN and Nox Arcana. Last, but not least, she now presents her official debut-album for which she got the help of the members of Nox Arcana. The music has a strong medieval taste, which might remind to Qntal for a couple of songs. The main difference is that M. Belanger digs a bit more into dramatic impressions, which is probably due to the soundtrack influence of Nox Arcana in the writing of this opus. M. Belanger is a talented soprano vocalist who adds an ethereal side to her work. Blood of angels became a quite of magic and bewitched piece of music. The Blood of angels and Children of heaven-songs are both excellent extracts of this dark opus. The Ella sheena-song contains a vague tribal influence bringing certain diversity to the writing and therefore my personal song. The last cut is an interesting Club mix of Children of heaven. This is a remarkable debut! www.monolithgraphics.com (DP:8)DP.
